Robert “Brian” Berryman, M.D.

Brian is a physician board member of Rumble Against Cancer. He was born and raised in Dallas Texas and attended Washington and Lee University in Lexington Virginia. He received his medical training in Internal Medicine and Oncology at UT Southwestern in Dallas and at the Fred Hutchinson Cancer Research Center in Seattle Washington. He is an attending physician at the Baylor University Medical Center and the Charles Sammons Cancer Center. In addition, he has been the Medical Director of the stem cell transplant program at Medical City Dallas. He specializes in blood and lymphatic cancers and stem cell transplantation. He is the transplant physician of fellow board member Steve Kinkel. Brian’s mother Mary Frances Berryman is a Breast Cancer survivor and died from complications of Multiple Myeloma in 1997. His mother and patients feed his determination towards the eradication of all cancers. Brian is involved in many charitable organizations promoting the awareness, prevention, research and treatment of cancer, including the Leukemia and Lymphoma Society, the American Cancer Society, the Multiple Myeloma Research Foundation and the International Myeloma Foundation. He loves the outdoors, running, and riding his HD Low Rider (when he reclaims it). When not working, he is kept in line by his wife Janet and his two girls, Mary and Emily.
